

1 Introduction

This assignment aims to assess how you implement and experimentally compare different nature-inspired algorithms. It aims at giving you some first hands-on experience of applying a nature-inspired algorithm in a given context and drawing conclusions about some operators from a set of experimental results. We consider different mutation operators in the context of continuous function optimisation.